In the Chinese pharmacoposia there are many strange and wonderful remedies, and the list given by Dr. Mackay, of Tamsni, is a long one We note however, that the most repulsive and disgusting medicines (saye the mark !) are given to the unfortunate children; possibly the gorgee of those of larger growth would rise in rebellion against such prescriptions. Among those remedies prescribed in diseases of children Dr Mackay mentions the following: - For cough bat's dang-name given in drug shop "night clear thread." For worms and yellowchapter of "The Pennycomequicks," which ish face, grabs from a necessary washed and dried-name in drug shop "grain sprouts" Also rabbit's dung, called "the worm killer." For thrush, cockroach's dung—name in drug shop worm pearls." For bad stomach, earth worms swallowed alive after being rolled in honey Fever, dog's dung propared—the dog being first fed in rice. Eruptions, boil on upper lip, fowl's dung. If a child is frightened, from a y cause prepared centipedes are given. Dr. Mackay adds that" for different diseases there are a number of worthless and filthy preparations, some of them scarcely mentionable." Some of the medicines prescribed for adults are not much better. Thus a man suffering from enlarged spleen would be ordered to take "grass of deer's stomach dried and out in slices, skins of silkworms, lining of hen's wizzard, salted scorvious"; while another s-ized with colio might be asked to swallow a preparation made from horse manure or as an alter-

It was winter, and all the rentiles which infest the desert were asleep. Suddenly the prophet's horse trod upon a viper, and apparently wounded it. Mahommed, full of mercy, got down from his horse, and taking up the viper put it into his sleeve hoping that the warmth would restore it. The viper soon began to stir. Incapable of gratitude, like the serpent which was in the beginning, it said to Mahommed Reverend prophet, I will bite thee!" "Nay, replied the mild prophet, "that would be the blackest ingratitude, poor reptile, to repay a good deed with an evil deed." "Nevertheless," said the viper. " I shall do it: I swear by God the Almighty that I will bite thee!" When Mahommed heard the name of Allah he dared not prolong the dispute, but, bowing his head with reverence said-" His name be praised for ever; you and I both belong to Him: from Him we both re- Temperature ...... peived life." and he offered the viper his hand. violent pain compelled him to fling the viper from his sleeve and to curse it in the name of Allah. The prophet then snoked the viper's poison from the wound and spat it out upon the sand A magnificent plant immediately aprung up on the spot where the prophet's sacred saliva had fallen. One of his disciples gathered some of its leaves and burned them as an offering to God for the resone of his prophet. Mahommed and his companions were delighted with the splendic aroms of the burnt offering as its smoke ascend ed towards heaven. From that day to this all the faithful of Islam have taken pleasure in the plant whose taste and soont partakes in an equal degree of the bitterness of the viper's poison

WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION.

An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at Daily Press Office, Hongkong For comprehensiveness and practical service his Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to expres; the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in estenso. Hack and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises: for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the shortly expected here, will load for the above Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and disponsing with those vast margins [919] and vacant spaces which have heretofore charactorized Chinese publications.

To illustrate the vast scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration:-Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub-

For practical purposes the arrangement 975 the work is so complete, that a reference t pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion-

It comprises upwards of two thousand large 4 Vols. IMPEBIAL QUARTO, Price, $20. A Large REDUCTION in PRICE is made
